A dark and sweet-fruited wine, offering red and black fruits, briar and licorice; the palate is thickly textured, warm and compelling, with the concentration and depth of fruit to satisfy lovers of rich, heady grenache.

Deep ruby. Sexy, highly perfumed aromas of black raspberry and lavender, with notes of white pepper and allspice adding complexity. Lush and creamy in texture, offering vibrant red and dark berry preserve flavors of impressive clarity. Expands and sweetens on the tenacious finish.

This is a vibrant, almost startlingly red in its strawberry ping of fruit, while earth tones come up in waves underneath. It feels as soft as velvet without the heavy cushioning to weigh it down. From old bush vines in the north-eastern hills of McLaren Vale, this wine should age into grand old complexity, though it would be delicious decanted for braised rabbit.

A well-structured spicy and mildly savoury style of grenache. A wellmade wine that has plenty of length and good level of freshness.

Very pure with excellent concentrated blackberry, raspberry and cherry fruits - some slate-like savoury notes, too. The palate is concentrated, lithe and pin-point accurate.
